THE PROBLEM

The customer called in to report that their MX4200 mesh router intermittently disconnects. They were advised to call back while near the device for troubleshooting.

ACTIONS TAKEN

- Customer called in to report intermittent disconnection on the MX4200
- Agent advised the customer to call back while near the device for further troubleshooting

Summary: The support agent received a call about device disconnection and instructed the customer to be near the device for proper troubleshooting, but no further diagnostic steps were completed.

Insights: Troubleshooting was not completed — only Step 1 was logged with no follow-up steps recorded. The ticket is marked Resolved despite no root cause identification or fix being documented, which is a significant gap.

NEXT STEPS

- Verify whether the disconnection issue was actually resolved before closing the ticket
- Conduct full troubleshooting with the customer near the device: check firmware version, app version, and ISP (China Telecom) connection stability
- Check if the MX4200 firmware is up to date and review router logs for disconnect patterns
